

NEWS RELEASE

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: ORLANDO, FL. December 1, 2020. The D.C. Jaeger Corporation was acknowledged for its ongoing support for providing career and technical education students with the Jaeger Endowed Scholarship at the University of South Florida College of Education.

"Your scholarship helps provide our students with the tools they need to earn their degree and become educational leaders," said Tracee Norris, Director of Development for the College of Education at USF.

Since 1957, D. C. Jaeger Corporation has earned the respect and trust of key decision makers in the educational market based on our dedication to providing solutions to Florida's dynamic and growing educational needs.

"Our corporate goal is to provide schools and colleges in Florida with the training systems they need to provide upskilling opportunities for students and incumbent workers to solve the skills gap that helps Florida diversify its economy," said Rod Jaeger, President and CEO of D. C. Jaeger. "We feel this ongoing scholarship support at USF underscores our commitment to provide Florida students with the best workforce education possible."

ABOUT D.C. JAEGER: D. C. Jaeger Corporation has built strong relationships with the Country's leading educational product manufacturers which allow us to provide a broad product mix to workforce training and STEM programs across the state.

As a full-service company ready for the challenge of preparing Florida's students and workers, we represent companies who have developed, designed and have proven training methods for success in the classroom. We then turn around and offer these solutions to career & technical education (CTE) programs throughout the state of Florida. (For more information, contact Rod Jaeger, 407-645-1500)
