WHAT FAITH MAKES POSSIBLE

By Tom Moore

"And without faith it is impossible to be well-pleasing unto him; for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that seek after him" (Heb. 11:6).

It is possible for us to please God, but only by faith can we do so. Enoch's example illustrates how we can relate to God when we have real faith. Enoch "walked with God" (Gen. 5:24). And his walk with God, based on faith, had remarkable results. "By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and he was not found, because God translated him: for he hath had witness borne to him that before his translation he had been well-pleasing unto God" (Heb. 11:5).

Enoch pleased God, the text says, by faith. Does this mean that the mere fact of intellectual "belief" pleases God? No, we must have a faith that diligently reaches toward God in a trust that is both hopeful, loving and obedient. "(for we walk by faith, not by sight); we are of good courage, I say, and are willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be at home with the Lord. Wherefore also we make it our aim, whether at home or absent, to be well-pleasing unto him" (2 Cor. 5:7-9). But notice also, "Ye see that by works a man is justified, and not only by faith" (Jam. 2:24). If we make it our aim to be well pleasing to God, we need to understand that this wonderful possibility can be real-

“Ye see that by works a man is justified, and not only by faith” (Jam. 2:24). If we make it our aim to be well pleasing to God, we need to understand that this wonderful possibility can be realized only by the obedience that comes from faith. Paul speaks of the “obedience of faith” (Rom. 1:5; 16:26). “Without faith it is impossible to be well-pleasing unto him” (Heb. 11:6).

Faith is one part of the great triad: faith, hope, and love. And, in fact, the faith that makes pleasing God possible has in it a strong element of both hope and love. All three of these spiritual attributes look to the future through the eyes of trust. Working together, they produce the “work of faith,” the “labor of love,” and the “patience of hope” (1 The. 1:3).

Consider that the faith by which we come to God and please Him is not without real hope. While faith gives us a vision of how great our possibilities with God can be, it is hope that fervently desires these possibilities to come true. More than that, hope expects them to come true! And this expectation moves us to emulate God's character and grow in purity. “And every one that hath this hope set on him purifieth himself, even as he is pure” (1 Jn. 3:3).

By faith, we seek to please God because we love Him. It is faith that gives wings to love's natural desire - showing us not only that God can be pleased but how we may do so, faith gives true substance to love's highest wish: the pleasure of our beloved God.
