HINTS OF GLORY

“All thy works shall give thanks unto thee, O Jehovah; And thy saints shall bless thee” (Psa. 145:10).

Every instance of beauty in the natural world is a hint that points us to the glory of God Himself. Whatever God has made bears some resemblance to its Maker. Like the artist whose every brush stroke says something about the artist himself, God has left evidence of Himself in the things that He has made (Acts 14:17). The tokens of God's glory in this world are beckoning us to another world, one with a far greater glory.

We, however, won't get the point of these hints of glory if we don't stop to think about them. If we are so busy with the details of our self-centered concerns that we never notice the works of God, it should be no surprise that we have difficulty maintaining a strong faith. With everything He has created, God is inviting us to meditate on Him, the Creator. When we don't “stop to smell the roses,” it's not only enjoyment that we miss, we miss His glory!

Perhaps we do notice the hints of God's glory around us, but we just don't experience them very deeply. If so, we would do ourselves a favor by learning to savor these things and relish them. When I was a boy, I could derive extraordinary pleasure from a Hershey chocolate bar. I wouldn't just eat it; I would contemplate it as I ate! With each small rectangle, I would taste it just as long as I could, actually thinking about how good it tasted. Wouldn't it be wise to enjoy God's works with this kind of lingering thoughtfulness? We should not only taste them but go so far as to relish them.

If we long to know God, we will be eager to enjoy each evidence of Him in the world, and these hints of glory will send us into the Scriptures to learn of His character. But think about this: all that we can learn of God now is only a small portion of what is waiting to be learned in eternity, when the faithful will surely say to God what the Queen of Sheba said to Solomon, "And she said to the king, It was a true report that I heard in mine own land of thine acts, and of thy wisdom. Howbeit I believed not the words, until I came, and mine eyes had seen it: and, behold, the half was not told me; thy wisdom and prosperity exceed the fame which I heard" (1 Kgs. 10:6,7).

Someone once said, "Place all your delight in Him. Say, O my God, You are the universal source of all good things! The perfections of Your creation are but a faint shadow of Your glory."
