“ We have our first real travel test of the new season with a Saturday visit to Fife then back here on Sunday to meet up with Sheffield Steelers. We were all very disappointed with last Saturday’s outcome against Dundee. When you only have one game you really want to win it and when you are more than halfway through the night and up by 3 goals it should be a game you win. We did get a point so at the very least we did not go away empty-handed, but it was a loss that is very hard to accept. It was a night of unusual circumstances with the long break to manage Jake Coughler’s injury which was far more important than the game in the big picture. When we did resume, both teams had to process the same situation. It could be argued that it is maybe a little tougher for the team of the injured player, but a difficult situation for everyone. In the end, perhaps we did not handle it as well as Dundee who turned the game entirely around. This weekend is a new chance, and we are going to try to make the most of the challenge ahead. Guys are working hard, and hopefully that effort will soon put us on a run of games where we can consistently have success. It is a couple of very good opponents on the agenda, and we hope you can join us for what should be an entertaining weekend. ”
